Core Services and LipoScience Partner in Successful Oracle E-Business Suite R12 Upgrade

Somerset, N.J., March 30, 2010 – Core Services Corporation (“Core Services”), an Oracle Platinum Partner, is pleased to announce the completion of a successful, major Oracle Release 12 (“R12”) upgrade project with LipoScience Inc. (“LipoScience”), further demonstrating Core Services’ deep consulting and hosting expertise with Oracle E-Business Suite. Through their collaborative partnership, Core Services and LipoScience leveraged Oracle functional and technical experts from both organizations.

LipoScience is a high growth diagnostic company that markets the NMR LipoProfile[®] test, a simple blood test that measures lipoprotein particles using proprietary applications of nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectroscopy.

“LipoScience recognized that the new Oracle R12 software features were needed in order to remain a market leader,” explains Leo Rotondaro, LipoScience’s Senior Director, Finance & Business Operations. “There is increased pressure to improve profit margins in every organization. We knew that Oracle Release 12 would support our rapid growth. Additionally, Oracle R12 facilitated implementation of the latest release of the Oracle Field Service module. Its benefits include a centralized view and point of control for monitoring Field Service activities, thus increasing our productivity and reducing operations costs.”

Oracle E-Business Suite Releases 12 and 12.1 provide significant enhancements across many Oracle modules, including Human Resources, Supply Chain Management, Procurement, Customer Relationship Management, and Financials. “Oracle E-Business Suite R12 enables clients to make informed business decisions seamlessly, efficiently achieve immediate value with their Oracle solutions, and invest in innovative ways to simplify, standardize, and integrate their business processes, thus enhancing their IT capability while reducing cost and complexity,” says Jim Bistis, Core Services’ President and CEO.

“Core Services’ consultants can leverage a broad base of knowledge and expertise derived from many years of Oracle consulting and hosting experience. Most importantly, clients can strengthen their competitive position with specific industry solutions that drive greater value across their businesses.”

Bistis concludes, “Core Services has seasoned consultants to work with business organizations and technical teams to manage projects smoothly and cost-effectively. This enables our clients to derive more value from their data, with substantial benefits to revenue enhancement, cost control, and implementation of leading edge competitive strategies.”

Rotondaro concludes, "Core Services exhibited great technical expertise and executed the R12 upgrade plan with flawless and user-friendly project management. Their client-centric approach ensured the success of our upgrade project from the start. The Core Services team completed the upgrade on time and within budget and they have proven to be valuable strategic partners."

About LipoScience

LipoScience, Inc. is a privately held diagnostic company that is focused on developing and marketing clinical diagnostic applications of nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) spectroscopy to help improve the way cardiovascular and other metabolic disorders are assessed and managed. The company was founded as a lab service business, and is decentralizing the technology platform to transition into an IVD diagnostic company. LipoScience's flagship product, the NMR LipoProfile test, is the first NMR-based clinical application that counts and measures lipoprotein particles -- microscopic spheres in the blood that carry cholesterol throughout the body -- to aid in the management of cardiovascular disease.
